

RETROFEST: the rise of

APRIL 30, MAY 1 & 2

THURS 7PM, FRI 7PM, SAT 1PM, 7PM in the HBUHSD Historic Auditorium

In the bygone era before the internet and content streaming, people first heard new music on the radio and occasionally saw their favorite artists on broadcast television. Then came the dawn of Cable TV and with it the promise of over 100 channels of content. When MTV started broadcasting in the summer of 1981, music fans had a new way of appreciating their favorite music – visually. The artists suddenly had to rely on not just their musical abilities, but they had to be photogenic too. The concept turned the music business on its head and for the next two decades, new hit artists and songs were mostly made on television. Music Television.
